

From: Nathan S. Van Curen
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 11/16/01 2:25pm
Subject: If you are just going to give Microsoft a slap on the wrist why don't you just make windows 2000 so

If you are just going to give Microsoft a slap on the wrist why don't you just make windows 2000 source code public domain. If Microsoft has a superior product then the new operating systems built off the source code will not be successful. But if Microsoft is inferior as I believe, the open source industry will take over. Level the playing field and then let market decide. I'm sure that I'm not the only person that knows that this the best solution. please leave the politics out of this decision. There is still time to change the DOJ's place in the history of the software industry.

Thanks
Nathan Van Curen